

Professional Training Days. Bodypsychotherapy and Erotic Transference

with Willem Poppeliers

founder of Sexual Grounding Therapy®

April 6th to 9th 2010, IdyllGais, Switzerland

What is it about?

«Within bodypsychotherapy the transference and countertransference is a very important issue. In this form of therapy the therapist uses his contact with the client as an active instrument and moves directly in and out the body energy of the client. You are a therapist who use your professional contact with the client to approach his or her problems in an appropriate way. So as a therapist you have to become bodily clear of who, how and where you are present in your body during the therapeutic process. In practice most therapists have the experience of the idea that if they are not supposed to have a sexual relationship with the client they should not feel it and realise it. This leads to denial and repression of the erotic feelings for each other during the work. It means denying erotic transference and countertransference which can lead to the possibility of acting it out during therapy or later after the therapeutic process has finished.»

Willem Poppeliers

For whom?

Professionals, trained in psychotherapy or coaching (equivalent to IBP Life-Coaching), working actually with clients, who want to enhance their capacity to work with erotic transference and countertransference.

What is the content?

The elements of the training are: Theory, body-exercises, integration rounds.

Some issues: What is erotic (conter-) transference in relation to the therapeutic and the oedipal situation? Experiencing the erotic transference and learning to handle it professionally. Dealing with the erotic pitfalls. Objectivity and subjectivity in erotic transference. Being present in the sexual body movement. Therapeutic boundaries and contact.

Willem Poppeliers will work in a clear and very professional way directly with the body. Those who do not know yet his way of working call the organizer to for more information about it.

Language: English. (Willem Poppeliers understands german) Some help for translation can be given.
